FR. CLINE

Hunger Game: Struggling to Keep the Lenten Fast

I was doing perfectly fine, sitting at the diner, scanning the menu, steadfastly determined to have a tuna melt for lunch, until someone at the table next to me made a fateful decision. They ordered a cheeseburger. It was downhill from there.

It arrived at the table, oozing melted cheese, heaped with French fries, the air fragrant with the faint aroma of just-broiled bacon. My salivary glands kicked into overdrive and before I could stop them, my lips were forming the words: "I'll have the burger deluxe."

Several minutes later, swabbing the ketchup from the plate with the last French fry, I heaved a deep sigh. I found myself once again in an all-too-familiar place, back at square one, trying (and failing) to maintain my Lenten fast. It happens this way almost every year: I begin Lent with noble ambitions and high ideals, ashes on my brow and determination in my heart, but somehow, I devolve quickly into Whoppers and pints of Cherry Coridal. (Get thee behind me, Handel's!)

Year after year, as the winter chill lingers and we wait expectantly for Easter, I am forced, like so many people, to confront my own weaknesses. Lent, I've discovered, is a period not only to pray and do penance; it is also a time to look more deeply at my faults and consider more seriously the temptations that could be as close as the corner deli.

We realize during Lent that we are flesh and blood. The season begins with smears of ash, a foreshadowing of what we will become and a reminder of what we are. We are dust. We are human. We have weaknesses, urges, desires. During the Lenten fast, we realize, too, how easily we can succumb—how spoiled we are by a culture that manages to deliver decadence to our door (okay, maybe it's just a big sausage pizza).

Of course, in 2025 skipping meat on Friday, or even going without one meal, isn't the hardship it once was. I'm trying, like many people, to have a leaner, more sensible diet, so salads and seafood appear on my plate more often. Restaurants, even fast-food chains, are doing their part—places like McDonald's, Taco Bell and Burger King routinely offer fish on their menus during Lent. A little planning, and discipline, can make the Lenten fast fairly painless.

What can be really challenging is giving up entirely a meal or two for a day—or maybe even going without any meal at all. There are also those you are, already in the express lane to sainthood. You know the kind, those who strive to eat only bread and water on Lenten Fridays. I marvel at their discipline and their ability to remain cheerful in a world without doughnuts.

I'm not there yet.

But I have come to understand this much: Lent is about more than doing without. It is also about going within—looking more deeply at who we are, what we need. I think part of our Lenten experience should be not only spending time going hungry, but also confronting, in a stark and honest way, what feeds us—in every sense. What do we feel we can't do without? What do we crave?

Beyond a Big Mac, do we yearn for something more elusive? Do we want flattery? Ego-stroking? Attention?

Try giving that up for Lent. You may feel pangs you never knew before.

Sometimes the most difficult fast can be not giving up food, but giving up power or gratification. Try it sometime. Do something wonderful for someone else, and don't claim any credit. Pick up the check of a stranger at the restaurant, or send flowers to a lonely friend, anonymously. Donate to a cause, or give to a shelter, or toss more money into the collection basket on Sunday—but do it in secret.

Your Father, who sees in secret, will know. And that will be more than enough.

When we look beyond ourselves and our own hungers, we see more clearly the very real and tangible hungers of others, and what we can do to ease them.

Fr. Cline

Stewardship Reflection

"A good tree does not bear rotten fruit, nor does a rotten tree bear good fruit."
- Luke 6:43

Are you using your gifts in the way God intended? Have you asked God how He would like you to use them? Do you compare yourself to others and complain about what you don't have instead of being thankful for what you do have? God gives each of us unique gifts and a unique plan. Listen to how God is calling you to use your gifts, to bear good fruit, for the glory of His name.

A Note from the Pastor

2025 ANNUAL DIOCESAN APPEAL

As I shared with you last week, the Annual Diocesan Appeal is upon us. This is a once a-year opportunity for all of us, as part of the greater Catholic community, to come together as One in Hope and One in Mission to make a financial commitment to support Catholic Charities and ministries across the entire diocese.

Please prayerfully consider how you and your family can support this year's appeal, which helps to empower the next generation, provide for those in need and strengthen Catholic communities in many important ways.

Our goal as the Parish Community of St. Catherine of Siena is $232,300.00. I hope you will join me in helping to meet and exceed this year's goal. The collective spirit we bring to this effort today will be a major step to our success with this year's appeal.

If you have not yet received your pledge invitation, you may find pledge cards in the pew.

Thank you,

Vatican International Eucharistic Miracle Exhibit

AT ST. LUKE SOCIAL HALL

SUNDAY, MARCH 16 AFTER 10:00 A.M. MASS

As Catholics we believe in the Real Presence and that the substance of the bread and wine with the words of Consecration at Mass become the body and blood of Christ. Eucharistic Miracles, occurring throughout the centuries, prayerfully confirm this truth in a way that is visible to us today. Blessed Carlo Acutis, at the age of 11, created a website to record all Eucharistic Miracles of the world.

Exposition of the Blessed Sacrament

Come spend some personal time in silence and prayer before the Blessed Sacrament.

Adoration is held at St. Charles Church every Tuesday, from 9:00 a.m. until Noon in the St. Joseph Daily Chapel.

St. Luke Church holds Adoration the first Friday of every month from 9:00 a.m. until 11:00 a.m. in the Chapel.

Prayer for Vocations

O Jesus Christ Our Savior, you are the master of vocations. You proclaimed to us that "the harvest is abundant, but the laborers are few." With hearts full of gratitude, we accept your invitation to follow you. May you send us as shepherds from your heart to journey with your flock, the people of God. Inspire more men and women to come with tenderness to tend your flock with charity and compassion. Mary, Our Mother, you were ever ready to follow God's will. Pray for all who are discerning a vocation, that they may seek it bravely and live it faithfully. Amen.
